DONAHEY VETO OF ELECTION CODE DEPLORED IN PLATFORM

Twenty Forceful Planks Offered in State Convention.

COOLIDGE LAUDED

Sound Business Policy Promised; Farm Problem Seen.

COLUMBUS, O., June 29.—After unanimously adopting a state platform, selecting, without opposition, 24 candidates for presidential electors, and listening to a number of addresses, the delegates to the Republican state convention adjourned sine die here at 1:10 o'clock this afternoon.

COLUMBUS, O., June 29.—Pledging "unqualified support" to the presidential candidacy of Herbert Hoover and "deplored" the election code veto by Governor Donahey, the G. O. P. state platform, a structure in which were riveted 20 forceful planks, was offered to Ohio Republicans at the closing session of the Republican state convention here today.

Approves Assembly Record.

Besides avowing support of the cabinet official and U. S. Senator Curtis, for vice-president, the platform specifically endorses the record of the Coolidge administration, approved the accomplishments of the last Republican general assembly, pledged the party to the adoption of a sound business policy and the support of measures to equalize and restrict taxation. Further, the platform, taking cognizance of the controversial subject of farm relief, pledged the party to "prevent any unjust discrimination against agriculture and industry." The platform condemns the "military tactics" of the Democratic administration "in failing to provide" for the adequate housing and proper segregation of the feeble-minded.

Corruption? What Else? Money 7½ Per Cent. The Smallest Mouse. He Opened the Door.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE
The opinions expressed in this column are those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review.

THE Democratic keynote is "Republican corruption, Secretary Fall, Mr. Sinclair, oil and oil spots."

Plenty of Republican corruption, but Democrats must find something better than that. Republicans will reply, "Old stuff. What have Fall, Sinclair and Doheny to do with Herbert Hoover?" As well try to fasten Bill Tweed of the Democratic party to Woodrow Wilson."

THE people know there is corruption. To their sorrow, they take much of it for granted. They hear about rotten politicians in Democratic New York grafting in every direction. They hear about other rotten politicians in Republican Washington, D. C., grafting as diligently as they know how, with an occasional cabinet officer selling government property to the highest bidder.

BUT all that doesn't decide a national election. The voters, mechanics, farmers, business men, will ask: "WHAT HAVE YOU TO OFFER?" Tell us what YOU propose to do?

HARD to keep a squirrel on the ground, hard to keep Wall Street discouraged. Big men that control money yesterday put "call money," with which poor stock gamblers gamble up to 7½.

In spite of that, prices wouldn't go down. Some that sold short, thinking the moment "to leave the corps" had arrived, were busy "covering."

Do what you please, but don't sell this country short. It's too dangerous.

MR. L. BUCK, mighty hunter before the Lord, brings from Africa a blue wildebeest, first ever seen by white man, a big gorilla, specimens of the gibbon and gelada monkey tribes, and a pygmy mouse as small as a bee.

THE question arises, were all these interesting creatures in the Garden of

POTTERS OPEN 10-DAY MEET TO CONSIDER NEW WAGE PACT

Mayor Benedum and W. T. Blake Welcome 100 Delegates.

DUFFY RESPONDS

No Session Tomorrow. Picnic Day at Meyers Lake.

With more than 100 delegates registered, the thirty-eighth annual convention of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters opened in the new $30,000 headquarters building, West Sixth street, at 10:15 o'clock this morning.

The visitors were welcomed in behalf of the city by Mayor Ralph C. Benedum, while Will T. Blake, manager of The Potters' Herald, appeared as spokesman for Trades and Labor council in greeting the ceramic industry representatives.

George C. Turner, chairman of the entertainment committee, was temporary chairman of the first session which was open to the public. Officers of the brotherhood, speakers and other guests occupied places on the platform.

Sing "America."

The convention opened with the singing of "America" with James Gilligan, Hopewell, Va., as leader and Mrs. Bertha Webber, of this city, as accompanist. Prayer was said by the Rev. Father Thomas E. Walsh, pastor of the St. Alloysius Catholic church.

"We welcome you to the home of the pottery industry," said Mayor Benedum. "We want you to have a good time while in East Liverpool so that you will want to return for future conventions."

Blake, appearing in place of Charles Podewels, president of Trades and Labor council who was unable to be present, landed the officers of the brotherhood for their hearty co-operation with trades council and their interest in labor activities.

Duffy Traces Brotherhood History.

President James M. Duffy, permanent chairman of the convention, was then introduced by Turner. Duffy briefly traced the history of the brotherhood and also touched upon the situation facing workers in the American potteries as a result of the competition offered by foreign manufacturers. He also discussed the many labor saving devices which have been invented recently.

"You delegates hold the key to the situation," said Duffy. "You have the authority to continue the good work which this organization has been doing or you can destroy it. Let us work for a common good."

Secretary-Treasurer John D. McGillicuddy then read a list of the convention committees. The report of the committee on credentials was submitted by Mrs. Lydia Smith, chairman. Following other committee reports the delegates recessed until this afternoon. The Rev. Warren O. Hawkin, D. D., pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church, pronounced the benediction.

The next meeting will be held on Friday evening, July 6.

BOULEVARD CARS TO START SUNDAY

The Steubenville, East Liverpool & Beaver Valley Traction company will resume service on the Grandview line as far as the Thompson boulevard Sunday morning, it was announced today.

Street car workmen are now constructing the track through Maplemere. The grading was done by peoples court at Lisbon.

Nineteen others against whom indictments were returned, were also not guilty were held for hearings.

William McClain, Wellsville, who was indicted for burglary, is confined in the county jail by illness. Ignace Kyk, indicted for assault with intent to kill and who is at liberty under bond, will also be arraigned later.

The invocation was pronounced by Frank D. Roosevelt in Chair.

Senator Robinson abstained himself from the chairmanship of the convention, and it was called to order by Franklin D. Roosevelt, the nominator of Smith and his floor manager.

It was 10:17 when the gavel fell.

At 10:30 the "Star Spangled Banner" brought everybody to attention, and order was secured immediately thereafter.

Despite his severe criticism of the platforms of both major parties, Norris admitted that for practical purposes a "third party is an impossibility."

"And what are the progressive minded people of the United States going to do about it?" Norris asked, after discussing disclosures concerning the power trust before the federal trade commission.

"Under our system of machine policies, the people are particularly helpless."

"In order to organize a party or run an independent candidate for president, it would be necessary that our antiquated electoral college be abolished and the people allowed to vote directly for president. It would then be very easy and inexpensive when the people are dissatisfied with the nominations made by the major parties, to run an independent candidate for president."

"But until we aimed the constitution and abolish this fifth wheel to our government, machines will pay no attention to the rank and file of political parties or to citizens generally," Norris declared.

Houston to Nominate Arkansas Senator as Al's Running Mate

Influential Delegations From New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois Will Vote for Permanent Chairman, and Drag Enough Others Along to Give Him First Ballot Victory.

SOME OF FAVORITE SONS FALL FROM TREE AS CONVENTION OPENS

Indiana Decides Not to Present Evans Woollen's Name; Cordell Hull Out of Race, and Nebraskans Will Not Put Forward Former Senator Gilbert N. Hitchcock.

HOUSTON, June 29.—Joseph Taylor Robinson today climaxed a career covering 34 years in public life by receiving the vice presidential nomination of the Democratic party.

A self-made man, Robinson rose from humble circumstances through sheer force of ability to become the leader of his party in the United States senate during the tumultuous years of the Harding and Coolidge administrations.

Previously he had been a state assemblyman, a member of congress and governor of his state.

By George R. Holmes.

SAM HOUSTON HALL, Houston, Tex., June 29.—It looked like Smith and Robinson as the Democrats returned to Sam Houston's big pine tabernacle today to complete the work of their convention by nominating a running mate for the New York governor.

Conferences held in the early morning hours, and canvasses of certain powerful key delegations made it appear certain that the Arkansas senator who has presided over this convention as permanent chairman would be speedily nominated. As the convention assembled, word was passed around that the influential delegations from New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois would vote for Senator Robinson, and drag enough others along to give the senate leader a first ballot nomination.

Some of the favorite sons for the vice presidency were dropping off the tree this morning. Gov. Smith in saddle.

The apparent disposition was to let the Smith people finish the job of taking over the party assets and future. With Governor Smith in the saddle now and having been given the kind of a platform his friends said was satisfactory to him, there didn't appear to be any logic in sounding a discordant note at the very end of the song.

Indiana decided not to present the name of Evans Woollen, Tennessean. Declared Cordell Hull's name would not go before the convention and if it did would be withdrawn.

Nebraskans decided not to put forward former Senator Gilbert N. Hitchcock.

F. D. Roosevelt in Chair.

Senator Robinson abstained himself from the chairmanship of the convention, and it was called to order by Franklin D. Roosevelt, the nominator of Smith and his floor manager.

It was 10:17 when the gavel fell.

At 10:30 the "Star Spangled Banner" brought everybody to attention, and order was secured immediately thereafter.

The invocation was pronounced by Frank D. Roosevelt of Houston, completing the circle of all faiths and sects that have asked divinity's blessing on Democracy's labors here.

Roosevelt then turned over the gavel to Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, and the popular Mississippian got a cheer, as he took it over.

Senator Harrison ordered the roll call for the presentation of names for vice presidency.

Alabama, the first state called, sent up Judge Michael Sollie, who proposed the nomination of Major General Henry T. Allen, who commanded the American forces during the Rhine occupation.

Roosevelt's Name Presented.

Arizona yielded to New Mexico and Senator Sam G. Bratton, the head-deputy junior senator of the state, took the platform and placed Senator Robinson's name before the convention.

"I come to give you a candidate," he said, "a native of the state of Ar-

ANNIE LAURIE'S TIMELY ADVICE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:
I am a boy of twenty-one and go around with a girl of twenty. We have known each other for seven years and I think the world of her. I'm sure she loves me too.

I would like to get married now but I don't make enough money. What shall I do? Wait until I make more or get married now?

WORRIED.

WORRIED: Way down in your heart, Worried, you know that you want to give the girl of your heart everything you possibly can. Therefore, you write and ask me what you shall do. Frankly, I don't approve of too long engagements. And as long as you are not at present in a position to support a wife, why not wait awhile before asking the girl to become engaged? If your love has survived this long, surely it is strong enough to wait a little longer. On the other hand, if you feel that you do not care to wait, why not get married and start in a small way? But I always feel that if a man truly loves a girl, he will prove to her that he can support her before they are married, and not drag her through years of waiting. Be the same friends you have always been, and work twice as hard as you ever have so that before long you will be able to give her a cozy home of her own and secure her love to help you through the years to come.

H. C.: I seldom answer personal letters, H. C., so am going to hope that you will see this and recognize your letter. Isn't there a "Y" which you can join in your town? This is one of the nicest ways I know of for a young man to make the acquaintance of the right kind of girls, for the acquaintances you form there will lead to introductions to the various boys' sisters and cousins and friends, and in this way you will lose that lonesome feeling. Or if there isn't, why not try going to church? There, I know, you would meet the right kind of girls and boys.

You see, H. C., all the letters which come to me are held in the strictest confidence and it would be betraying that confidence for me to give names and addresses of my correspondents.

I'm sure there must be some contact for you whereby you can meet the kind of people you want to know. Good luck to you!

HASKIN DAILY LETTER

By Frederick J. Haskin

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 29.—While the steam-heating plants in use in the habitations of man are a comparatively modern invention, the department of the interior points out that nature has a steam-heating system of her own that has been in operation for many centuries and which has recently been put into practical use in some of the government national parks.

In the Hawaiian national park the administration building of the national park service is heated by live steam piped from one of the hot vents of the Kilauea volcano. This steam-heating system was designed by Superintendent Thomas Boles and enables the office to be kept at a uniform temperature through controlled volcanic heat.

This was done by conducting the steam from the small steam crack and sending it under the house in a steam-tight box, with a corrugated iron top and by bringing the siding down to the ground. This keeps the air under the house always warm and dry and maintains a temperature inside the house of anywhere from 60 to 100 degrees, depending upon the amount of steam passing under the house. A trap door on one end of the conduit regulates the entrance of the steam. A dummy chimney lets the steam pass up through it and looks to the outsider as if there was a good fire going all of the time.

The only hotel in the Hawaii National park is the Volcanic house, located on the outer rim of Kilauea volcano. From its front porch the visitor may enjoy an excellent view of Mauna Loa and of the great lava floor of Kilauea. The hotel, which is a modern structure of 100 rooms, provides steam and sulphur baths, using live steam and heat from the volcano.

Perhaps the most interesting phenomenon, which is modern in combining the fireless cooker with the refrigerator, is in the Valley of Ten Thousand Smokes, in Alaska, in the Katmai National monument. Here, at an altitude of 2500 feet, the temperature six inches beneath the ground reaches the boiling point. Explorers have been reported to have pitched their tents so that they were heated from one or more of the "ten thousand smokes" that rise all over the valley. Usually most of the bedding had to be put under them to keep them cool! On this farm ground are huge ice-drifts, utilized by the traveler as a refrigerator, where everything can be kept freezing cold.

Gov. Smith's victory at Houston means a keen fight for the White House. He is a worthy opponent of Herbert Hoover, but the Republican party has no fear of the result. The secretary of commerce who has pledged himself to continue the policies of Calvin Coolidge, will be the next president of the United States.

Bowers' Call to Arms

The keynote address of Claude G. Bowers, editorial writer on a New York newspaper, before the Democratic convention at Houston, sent ringing out across the rafters of the newly completed hall as a clarion call to all followers of Thomas Jefferson, differs radically in words from prior keynote speeches on similar occasions, but the burden of the plea is always, "Down With the Republican regime."

It was only natural that Mr. Bowers should bring up the McNary-Haugen proposal which President Coolidge twice turned down. It was to be expected that he should attack the Republican party because of the Teapot Dome and allied oil scandals. And it was not in the least surprising to Republicans that Mr. Bowers assailed the secretary of the treasury for what the Democratic keynoter termed his "restoration of aristocracy in money."

But what the Republicans—and the Democrats, as well—had a right to expect from Mr. Bowers' keynote speech was something new as a campaign issue—something upon which the opposing party strategists might lock horns and indulge in a good, old-fashioned political scrap. The Democratic keynoter, however, passed up everything which might have been campaign material, and rested the Democratic cause this year on the identical supports of past campaigns—a general attack on the Republican party and its members, and a plea to "oust the Republicans and give the Democrats chance."

Mr. Bowers asserted that the Democratic hosts to not underestimate the strength of "the enemy"—the Republican party. He referred to the "little gilded group" which directs a "stream of slush" in the Republican coffers—and bemoaned the fact that the "Republicans enter the campaign unembarrassed by a debt," adding that "Harry Sinclair has paid that off."

But what Mr. Bowers neglected to say right there was that those Republicans responsible for any Harry Sinclair money in the Republican party war chest have been utterly discredited, and that the Republican party nominated a ticket composed of two men who will go before the electorate with clean hands and high-minded purpose, in the knowledge that continued economic prosperity will continue.

Typically Democratic was Mr. Bowers' keynote speech—typical in that it shot its bolt in sarcastic assaults on the Republican party, and failed to offer any remedy for so-called Republican short-comings other than the plea to turn out the party now in power and give the Democrats a chance.

All of the thunder has already been taken out of Mr. Bowers' proposed campaign material. The Republicans did that. And the calling of names, even in keynote addresses, is not only in bad taste, but has come to be looked upon as a mighty poor vote-getting propaganda. Elemental Jeffersonian democracy may have accomplished its purpose in the earlier days of political partisanship, but it will avail the Democrats nothing this fall when the people go to the polls to determine, by their balloting, whether they want a business administration at Washington, or another experiment like the one which resulted in such a financial debacle for every man and woman in the country during the last Grover Cleveland regime.

With both Miss Thea Rasche and the "North Star" in Canada, it will be interesting to note the effectiveness of the injunction issued in this country to restrain her from attempting a trans-Atlantic flight.

Seventeen machine-guns bullets were found in the body of a man shot up by St. Louis gangsters. It is evident that they were from Missouri on the proposition that the first half dozen or so killed him.

So sharp is the rivalry for business there that one of the railway lines serving Scotland is running a non-stop train the 401 1/2 miles from London to Glasgow. The Scots have learned that railway stops are expensive.

NEW YORK Day By Day

By O. O. McIntyre,

NEW YORK, June 29.—Thoughts while strolling: The avenue bristling with flags, Goody, maybe there'll be a parade and a band. Those modernistic dress forms with heads like snails. I hope the owner of the mill of gum in my instep acquires a mild dose of itch. Theodore Dreiser, a Terre Haute, Ind., boy, who made good in the city.

Lee Shubert alone in a big car. He's a glamor looking fellow. A white Russian wolf hound asleep on the steps of a church. Pale youths with tawnies who gallop along hatless as though going somewhere. Instead of just showing off. The sombre dignity of a Japanese store. Joseph Mulvaney, the dramatic scribbler.

There's an idea—bathtub hookracks. More entire glass building fronts. What's become of feather boas? Brass sign: "Plutonian Science." What fresh hell is that? A plump dawager without a yapping Pek. Tony Sarg. Aging clowns with white vest edging. The sun sinks in blood-red splendor.

The eerie evening honk of geese in the Central Park lake. A white wing lights a cigarette lights a cigarette with a patent lighter. The guilty feeling when a cop walks suddenly toward you. And the effort to appear don't carish. Maids tryin' to look pale and interesting. And only succeed in looking pale.

Why feel foolish when a group sniggers as you pass by? They may be laughing at something else. Unless you wear white spats. The golden cock on the Hecksher building. Receives more publicity than Peggy Joyce's latest diamond. Dusk sits gray shadows.

Karl Kitchen leaving his bachelor chambers. Those vigorous fellows who seem to spring up the steps of the Athletic Club. Making the ordinary mortal feel as though he had the rickets or something. Wonder if I'm spry enough to cross Columbus Circle.

Evelyn Law, the high kick dancing girl. Who attends church regularly. At least a press agent says. Those fresh milk shops seem to be cutting into the orange drink places. They have been forgetting about the orange anyway lately. Broadway prosperity makes folk careless. A sleepy star sinks its eye.

The underworld still whispers police Lieutenant and gangsters electrocuted for the murder of Herman

Because a certain action of yours represents nothing really wrong, you think it unnecessary to abstain from it.

You flatter yourself that you are above the "speech of people."

Don't be so short sighted.

Habit is a strange thing. And when we study our habits one by one, we learn how inconsistent we really are. I'll give you an example.

Suppose you were to come to my house and wanted to wash your hands. Suppose I took you to a soiled wash bowl filled with dirty water and offered you a soiled towel. What would you do?

If I stood by to watch, you would gingerly dip the end of your fingers in the water, scowl at the dirty towel and take out your handkerchief to dry your fingers. As soon as possible, without openly insulting me, you would take your departure, vowing never to visit my home again.

If I handed you a dirty glass, filled with dirty water, in response to your request for a drink, you would dash it in my face and challenge me to a duel. I wouldn't blame you.

"FIGHTING JIM" REED SOUNDS CALL TO ARMS

Fiery Missourian Says:
"United We Face Enemy."

HIS BATTLE CRY
Assails Hoover and Denounces President
Coolidge.

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN.
HOUSTON, Texas, June 29.—Fighting Jim Reed of Missouri under the penetrating Kleig lights of Sam Houston hall at 1 o'clock in the morning, sounding a clarion call to arms—that is the picture which will remain forever to those who saw it in the Democratic national convention of 1928.

His close clipped snowy hair, fairly bristles; it is sleek, virile, years younger than the ruddy warrior's face it crowns. His eyes, fired by the battle's glow, challenge the blinding power of the high-blue lights focused upon him from every angle.

"United, we face the common enemy!"

That is his battle cry. With that single sentence the most vigorous opponent of Governor Smith leaps to party leadership in the new dynasty, after Smith's nomination.

Holds Hearers at 1 a.m.

In that sentence there is all the fire of Reed of the front row in the senate.

These defiant eyes leap from defeat to victory—for Reed was never beaten.

"My fingers have never scratched the name of a Democrat who won the nomination."

It is harmony in the Democratic party, just as the party planned.

It is high oratory to hold a convention at 1 a.m. After that convention finally has nominated the man it has been struggling to nominate for eight lean years.

Reed took the convention merely with the muscle twitches of his battle marked face; it was his before he uttered a line.

"If there is half as much activity in the Democratic party in November as there is on the floor now, the ticket selected by this convention is elected," he declared.

Forward March, he Urges.

Reed is 69, but his terminology is that sharp, gripping, lashing language of eager young men serious in the business of conquering an inexorable world.

"I call upon every Democrat in the United States—" and now comes that smashing apoplectic gesture which brings the listener forward in his hot chair—"I call upon every Democrat in the United States, until the last ballot is counted on the night of the election, to support the nominee of this convention, and by such support to give protection against what I regard as the greatest menace to free government in my life time.

"In our great councils here we have reached a decision, and the thing for the Democratic party to do is to 'right dress,' forward march—and continue to march until the Republican party is driven from power."

Assails Hoover.

Reed called the roll of the sins of the Republican party from Grant to Coolidge, and then turned his hot lash upon Herbert Hoover.

"I fear for the destiny of our great country should a man of his background be elected to the presidency. If this country is to elect an Englishman to the presidency, I should prefer a thoroughbred Englishman from London rather than a renegade American."

He denounced President Coolidge and all his cabinet in a blanket indictment charging indifference to the poor Dome revelations.

"They are as num as a bunch of Boston oysters decaying on the beach in the month of August. When Grant discovered graft he said, 'Let none of the guilty escape.' Has anybody heard anything like that from Coolidge? or from Mr. Hoover?

Raps Will Hays.

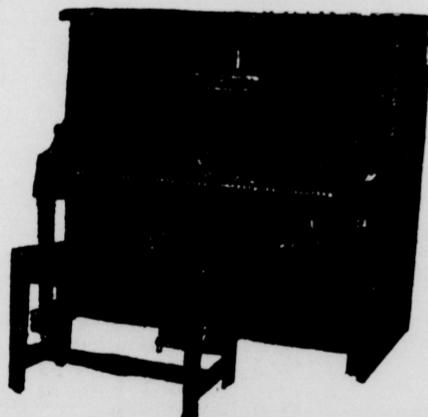

Reverting to the Liberty bond transactions of the famous Continental Trading company, part of which were contributed by Harry F. Sinclair to the Republican campaign deficit from 1920, Reed got around in a few sentences to the suggestion:

"I move that the movie industry be required to reinstate Fatty Arbuckle and require him to fire Will Hays."

Call it a swan song if you will. Jim Reed retires from the senate next March after 51 years of political life. He is going back to Kansas City to become a private citizen—to have, as he once told a colleague in the senate cloakroom, a whirlwind front porch campaign all of his own.

AL SMITH GETS 849 VOTES ON INITIAL CALL

Ohio Switches 45 to Assure Victory of Governor.

PLACATE FORCES

Platform Adopted With Offering of Minority Report.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

HOUSTON, Texas, June 29.—United at last after eight years of discord, the untrified Democracy went back to Houston's big pine tabernacle today to name a running mate for Al Smith and to wind up this historic Democratic convention.

The big plunge has been taken. Al Smith is the nominee, the first of his religious faith in the history of American politics to be nominated for the presidency by any major political party. A platform has been adopted that accomplished the seemingly impossible task of placating both the eastern and northern wets and the southern and western drys.

There remained today only the job of nominating a vice president, and Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas appeared to be "it" in this new game of Democratic fraternizing.

K. Platform Without Roll Call.

Veterans of San Francisco and New York could scarcely believe their eyes when they saw Democratic platform adopted in open convention without a minority report even being offered on the floor within less than two hours after its presentation. And without a roll call vote. Hardly could they believe when their pencils told them that Al Smith, a pillar of Tammany and a Roman Catholic to boot, was nominated on the first ballot with 849 to 23 out of a possible 1,100 total.

In the end, all of the state standards from southern states were in the aisles marching behind those from the north and west. For example, the final records will show that 23 of Tennessee's 24 votes were cast for Smith on the first ballot, and half of Mississippi's.

There were some die-hards among the southern states, of course. Texas, Alabama, Georgia, the two Carolinas, Florida, were recorded as casting no votes for Smith, for the traditional motion to make the nomination of the New York governor unanimous was not offered.

In 31 words the prohibition issue was disposed of. They were these:

"This convention pledges the party and its nominees to an honest effort to enforce the Eighteenth amendment and all other provisions of the federal constitution and all laws enacted thereon."

He referred to the fact that Democratic conventions never go south for candidates.

Senator Walsh, himself a Catholic, paid glowing tribute to his colleague's fairness and ability in the leadership of the senate.

Woman in Race.

California yielded to Wyoming as the roll call went on, and Mrs. T. S. Talliferro of Rock Springs, came forward and placed in nomination Mrs. Nellie Taylor Ross, the former governor of Wyoming.

Colorado yielded to Kentucky on the next call and former Senator Stanley came forward to offer Senator Albin W. Barkley, Kentucky's favorite son, whose adherents have been for days wearing hats proclaiming "Al All."

Stanley stressed that Kentucky is a doubtful state, a border state.

At this point Senator Harris of Georgia proposed that nominating speeches be confined to five minutes and second speeches to three minutes. His move to shorten the proceedings was greeted with approval.

The new rule went into effect just as former Senator J. Ham Lewis of Illinois took the platform to second the nomination of Robinson.

DEMS' PLATFORM PLANK PLEDGES ENFORCEMENT

Promises Agriculture Equality With Industry.

ATTACKS G. O. P.

Virtual Love Feast Follows Prohibition Row.

By KENNETH CLARK.

HOUSTON, Texas, June 29.—Democracy's hosts went forth to battle under a platform standard calling for strict enforcement of the eighteenth amendment, promising agriculture equality with industry and attacking Republican corruption.

These were the major planks in the 1928 platform which was adopted in a virtual love feast on the convention floor after the prohibition row had been smoothed over in the resolutions committee.

The prohibition declaration, couched in words somewhat similar to those used by the Republicans at Kansas City, said:

"This convention pledges the party and its nominees to an honest effort to enforce the eighteenth amendment and all other provisions of the federal constitution and all laws enacted pursuant to it."

Denounces Republicans.

Coupled with the pledge was a denunciation of the Republican party in these words:

"The Republican party, for eight years in complete control of the government at Washington, presents the remarkable spectacle of failing to compel in its national platform to promise obedience to a provision of the federal constitution which it has flagrantly disregarded and to apologize to the country for its failure to enforce laws enacted by the congress of the United States."

Wet and Drys Satisfied.

Both wet and dry leaders described the plank as satisfactory and friends of Gov. Al Smith, the party nominee, said it would not embarrass the New Yorker's favoring liberalization of the Volstead act. Senator Glass of Virginia wrote the plank after a more liberal pronouncement had been rejected by the drafting committee. Gov. Dan Moody, the Texas dry leader, said he would support it. Governor Ritchie of Maryland, champion of the wets, approved the declaration of party policy.

Bishop James Cannon of Methodist Episcopal church, south, put his stamp of approval on it. So did Senator Wagner of New York, spokesman for Smith.

General Motors sold at 188½ to 189 2½ for 10,000 shares.

Transportation—"Common carriers, whether by land, water or rail, must be protected in an equal opportunity to compete so that governmental regulations against exorbitant rates and inefficiency will be aided by competition."

Labor—"Labor is not a commodity.

Human rights must be safe-guarded.

Labor should be exempt from the operations of the anti-trust laws.

We recognize that legislative and other investigations have shown the existence of grave abuse in the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes."

Assistance for War Veterans.

Veterans—"Generous appropriations, honest management, the removal of vexatious administration delays and sympathetic assistance for the veterans of all wars, is what the Democratic party demands."

Women and children—"We declare for equality of women with men in all political and governmental matters."

Immigration—"Laws which limit immigration must be preserved in full force and effect, but the provisions contained in these laws that separate husbands from wives and parents from infant children are inhuman."

Campaign expenditures—"We condemn the improper and excessive use of money in elections as a danger threatening the very existence of democratic institutions."

Monopolies and anti-trust laws—

"Honest business, no matter its size, need have no fears of a Democratic administration. The Democratic party will ever oppose illegitimate and dishonest business."

Waterways and Lakes.

Water power, waterways and flood control—"We favor and will promote deep waterways from the Great Lakes to the gulf and to the Atlantic ocean.

We favor expeditious construction of flood relief works on the Mississippi and Colorado rivers and such reclamation and irrigation projects upon the front."

Forty-five of the Buckeye state's 48 votes were switched immediately and this sent Smith across with votes to spar. But the bandwagon was already rumbling. Half a dozen states,

Indiana included, wanted to follow the Ohio example and it took half an hour for them all to get aboard.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy shown us during the illness and death of our mother and grandmother, Mrs. Mary E. Blackmore.

Especially do we thank Rev. Lawrence, Mrs. Esther Hayes, those who sent the beautiful flowers and donated the use of their cars.

AL SMITH'S LIFE READS LIKE TALE FROM FICTION PAGE

NEWSBOY, THEN FISH PEDDLER AND GOVERNOR

Son of Immigrant Parents; Born in Tenement.

57 YEARS OLD

Father Died When Nominee Was Tot; Always Hustler.

To describe Al Smith merely as "a child of destiny" is but to confess the feebleness and inadequacy of words.

He is more than that, this son of poor immigrant parents, whose birthplace was the noisy tenement district of the lower East Side, and whose boyhood playground and workshop was literally the "sidewalks of New York."

Hated and feared to the point of obsession, loved and admired to the point of idolatry, there has been no more controversial, arresting nor interesting figure in a century and a half of American politics than this man who has risen from a newsboy and fish peddler amid the squalid tenements to a serious contender for the presidency of the United States.

He is the first Catholic in American history to be nominated by a major political party for office. That in itself attests the prominence and the arresting personality of the man. His Catholicism and his anti-prohibition views constituted the greatest barriers to his nomination. Far lesser handicaps have kept the prize from other men.

Like Fiction Tale.

The story of Al Smith's life reads like a tale from one of fiction's fantastic pages. Had Horatio Alger written one of his innumerable novels around a career so outstanding tracing it from its beginning down in the "tough" section of New York, up through the hard-boiled wards of the great city, into municipal politics and thence into the governor's chair, and finally to within striking distance of the White House, practical people would have dismissed it with a laugh as fiction too imaginative to be true. And yet it is true, and the story becomes an epic of American opportunity and its fulfillment. Certainly there is no stranger story in American politics.

Al Smith is 57 years old, and each of those 57 years have been filled with fight and controversy and struggle against natural handicaps. He fought other newsboys, tough little Italian, Jewish and Irish lads for advantageous corners on which to sell his papers as a boy. He fought them later for the fish trade that he plied from a cart which he pushed himself through the teeming and torrid streets. He had to fight to exist. His father was dead when he was still a tot, and he, young Al, was the principal support of a mother and sister in Oliver street.

At Parochial School.

Somehow, perhaps by a good deal of sacrifice on his mother's part, the boy managed to get an education, or the rudiments of one from the parochial schools of his neighborhood. When he wasn't peddling newspapers and fish he attended St. James parochial school in Cherry street in the old Fourth Ward.

With the natural aptitude of the Irish for politics this mother was a Mulvihill young Al began to take an interest in ward affairs after he outgrew the gangling age. In those days the Irish and the Germans ran the wards, and the rivalry was intense, not alone as between races, but as between factions. Al's father was German; his mother was Irish.

In 1894, "Tim" Campbell ran for congress from the district. He noticed young Al as a likely looking youngster, who had had the tenacity of purpose to obtain some education and who seemed to have a flair for making friends and public speaking. That was Al Smith's first break into politics, his speaking for Campbell.

A year later he got his first political job, a clerkship in commissioner of jurors' department. He was then 22 years old. About that time Tom Foley, who later became noted as one of the big figures of Tammany, decided to contest the Fourth ward leadership with Pat Divver. Al was a hustler as had friends. Foley needed a hustler who had friends, so the youngster became a part of the Foley faction in East Side politics, and a friendship began that lasted until the death of Foley many years later. Thus it was that Tom Foley became known as "Al Smith's political godfather."

Showed Gratitude.

They won that fight. Foley, in gratitude, threw various things young Al's way, and the years rolled on. In 1903, when he was 30, young Al decided that he wanted something better than ordinary ward politics. He had been studying law at Fordham and at Manhattan college and he was ambitious. He decided he would like to go to the assembly, and Foley and the organization put him there.

At Albany, Smith found himself in a new and different environment from any he had ever known. He began to learn that there was a higher statesmanship than that of city politics.

He met there men cultured and wealthy and educated men from all parts of the state; his vision began to broaden and he began to grow politically. He had a natural aptitude for politics and for administration. He progressed rapidly, first to the speakership of the assembly and then to the leadership of his party in the legislature, whether the Democrats were in power or not. He was either majority or minority leader from then on until 1915 when he resigned to become sheriff of New York.

Throughout those years in the legislature Al Smith studied. He was a raw novice in legislative matters when he went to Albany. Yet so earnestly did he work, and so rapidly did he broaden that Elihu Root paid him the compliment in 1915 at the constitutional convention of saying that he had one of the "finest administrative brains in New York."

Leaves Legislature.

He left the legislature regretfully because the financial demands of his large and growing family made it necessary. The sheriffship of New York is a remunerative position, with its fees and emoluments.

The sheriff's office, however, was not attractive save in a financial way, and after two years of it Smith had become president of the New York board of aldermen, a responsible office more in keeping with his liking and talents.

Several years in that office, he ran for governor and was elected. That was in 1919. Since then, with the exception of one defeat, he occupied the executive mansion at Albany, and even his opponents have been forced to admit that his administrations have been successful. For the most part he has been hampered by having to deal with Republican legislatures, but notwithstanding this handicap he has effected widespread reforms in the state government.

His hold on the electorate of New York is without parallel in New York politics. Thrice he has been elected to the governorship while the rest of his party went down to defeat. He has run ahead of his ticket every time he has been up. The outstanding example of his popularity was in 1924 when Coolidge carried the state for president by an overwhelming vote, but Smith carried it, too, by half a million votes against Theodore Roosevelt.

Not a Smooth Road.

Smith's road to the nomination for president has been no smooth one. On the contrary it has been filled with barriers and obstacles such as have confronted no other man in political history, and yet, without actively pursuing the nomination he has overcome them largely by the sheer force of his powerful personality and by his outstanding record as an executive of the greatest state in the union.

It was in 1920 that Smith, then serving his first term as governor of New York, first appeared as a candidate for the Democratic nomination. His claims were put forward by his loyal friends of the New York delegation at San Francisco, but it was no serious thrust. Al Smith then was too little known nationally.

But in 1924, with the successful record as an administrator in Albany behind him, it was a different story. His claims were then advanced with sincerity and purpose. The convention, which met at Madison Square Garden, has become historic. The chief contestants for the nomination were William Gibbs McAdoo, John W. Davis, Senator Carter Glass, Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, and numerous favorite sons. It soon became a battle between McAdoo and Smith.

Bitter Convention Fight.

The Ku Klux Klan was then at the height of its power, and it was perhaps inevitable that the religious issue should be injected into the fight. From being merely a spirited contest, the fight between the McAdoo and Smith factions developed into the bitterest convention feud in American political history, and it all but wrecked the party. In the end, after nearly four weeks of savage fighting such as no convention had ever seen, both Smith and McAdoo eliminated themselves and the convention nominated John W. Davis. But the wounds inflicted at Madison Square Garden remained open for many months, and even yet may prove a determining factor in the Democratic history of 1928.

After the great Garden debacle, the voters of New York sent Smith back to the governor ship at Albany with the greatest popular vote ever accorded him—and this at a time when Coolidge was carrying the state by a million votes. In such a manner did New York voice its resentment at what it considered unfair treatment accorded its favorite son.

The effect of this overwhelming tribute, and another election in 1926, made Smith again the outstanding candidate for the nomination in 1928.

McAdoo Blamed.

Meanwhile, McAdoo's political sun had begun to set. Rightly or wrongly, McAdoo was blamed by the Smith cohorts for injecting the religious issue into the Madison Square Garden convention, and with keeping open some of the wounds that the party experienced there. In any event, McAdoo slipped slowly out of the Democratic picture after 1924, and with Smith in office in Albany, conducting a successful administration, it was but natural that he should become the cynosure of Democratic eyes in 1928.

McAdoo endeavored in devious ways to stem the tide of the Smith advance during the last year, but every effort resulted in failure. Realizing his own weakness as a contestant, McAdoo got behind Senator Thomas J. Walsh (D.) of Montana, the famous oil prosecutor, but Walsh retired shortly after his defeat in the California primary by Smith. It was evident, said Walsh, that the Democrats wanted none other but Smith.

The prohibition forces have conducted unceasing warfare against Smith throughout his political career, and since 1924 it has been practically a continuous, day-to-day barrage.

The Anti-Saloon league, the W. C. T. U. and the score of affiliated dry organizations of various names, have daily and weekly flooded the country with attacks on Smith and his record. They have delved back into his early days as an assemblyman at Albany to show that he consistently voted for the liberalization of the liquor laws from 1903 onward, and that since 1920 he has just as consistently urged enforcement of the present laws, so long as they are on the statute books. He has, however, contended that it is the duty of the federal government and not specifically the duty of the states, to enforce the Volstead act.

Opposes Prohibition.

That Smith's record is one of consistent opposition to prohibition no one can deny, although at the same time he has just as consistently urged enforcement of the present laws, so long as they are on the statute books. He has, however, contended that it is the duty of the federal government and not specifically the duty of the states, to enforce the Volstead act.

It was in his administration that the New York legislature twice petitioned congress to liberalize the Volstead act to permit the sale of light wines and beer, and it was under his administration that the legislature repealed the Mullan-Gage state enforcement law which the previous Republican administration had enacted.

His annual messages to the legislature have regularly called attention to the prohibition situation, with the advice that it be corrected by the enactment of liberalizing legislation.

Only a year ago, after New York had held a "referendum" on prohibition and voted wet, Gov. Smith said in his message to the legislature:

"I believe that the duty now rests upon the legislature to pass suitable resolutions conveying in a formal manner the result of that vote for the referendum so-called to the congress of the United States and memorializing it in behalf of the state of New York to enact at the earliest possible moment a sensible, reasonable defense of the Volstead act."

His claims were put forward by his loyal friends of the New York delegation at San Francisco, but it was no serious thrust. Al Smith then was too little known nationally.

ALFRED E. SMITH
GOVERNOR OF N.Y. STATE

His reply constituted one of the most remarkable contributions to religio-political discussion on record. He avowed his complete faith in the absolute separation of the church and state, and declared there was nothing in his Catholicism that would militate against his faithful adherence to the Constitution.

"I recognize no power in the institution of my church to interfere with the constitution of the United States or in the enforcement of the law of the land," he said.

"I believe in absolute freedom of conscience for all men and in equality of all churches, all sects, and all beliefs before the law as a matter of right and not as a matter of favor.

Freedom of Conscience.

"I believe in the absolute separation of church and state, and in the strict enforcement of the provision of the constitution that congress shall make no laws respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.

"I believe that no tribunal of any church has any power to make any decree of any force in the law of the land, other than to establish the status of its own communicants within its own church."

"I believe in the support of the public school as one of the cornerstones of American liberty.

"I believe in the right of every parent to choose whether his child shall be educated in the public school or in a religious school supported by those of his own faith.

"I believe in the non-interference by this country in the internal affairs what constitutes an intoxicant under the Eighteenth amendment so that harmless beverages which our people have enjoyed for centuries may be restored to them."

For this and similar advice to the legislature, Gov. Smith has been termed "nullificationist" by the prohibition forces. They have charged him with trying to nullify the Eighteenth amendment by enactment of legislation in conflict with the spirit of the amendment."

Subtle Attacks.

The attack on Gov. Smith on religious grounds, while it has not been as open as on his "wet record," has nevertheless been subtle and far-reaching.

It culminated a year and a half ago when Charles C. Marshall, an Episcopalian lawyer in New York, published a remarkably frank open letter to Gov. Smith asking him how he could reconcile his duty to his church with his fealty to the American constitution.

Marshall pointed out that a tenet of the Catholic faith was the omnipotence of the church, and he asked whether as a president of the United States Smith would recognize the supremacy of the constitution or that of his church in case of conflict. Marshall's letter was no piece of demagogery. It was a sober, dignified, and intelligent inquiry, and Gov. Smith took immediate cognizance of the fact.

Wellsville Defeats Turk Nash, 4 to 2, In City League Battle

"Nick's" Pinch Hitters Deliver in Final Frame

Bloor and Bennet Come Through With Singles to Break 2-2 Deadlock; Pollock, Easton Pitch Fine Ball.

Pilot Roy Nicholson of Wellsville, who has probably sprouted a few extra gray hairs as a result of the unexpectedly torrid ending of the first half of the City League race in which his club has been forced to fight to the last ditch to come through, last night gazed nervously over the seventh inning situation last night at Columbian park and made the following mental observations: Score tied, 2 to 2; tailend of the batting order; a victory would probably mean the pennant; a defeat—disaster, and one more battle chance.

So Pilot Roy Nicholson sent two pinch hitters into the lineup and both pinch hitters actually hit! That tells briefly the story of the two runs that the league leaders slammed across the plate on the East End lot last night in the semi-darkness of the seventh inning to beat Turk Nash, 4 to 2.

With two more games to play while Turk Nash has five, it does not seem possible for the Wellsville aggregation to lose the bunting, and the worst that could befall them would be a deadlock with John Fowler's club in which event a play-off series would be necessary.

The above details, however, do not tell of the sensational pitching performance turned in by Ray Pollock who whiffed nine Wellsville batters in the seventh inning of play, nor the steady, consistent game of "Happy" Easton, of Wellsville, the two southpaws going the limit.

They battled on even terms until that final frame when Easton turned back the Motors with two strikeouts and a fly ball while Nicholson's pinch hitters went out and hit.

Bill Talbot, Wellsville second baseman, had a big day at the bat with three solid binges in three trips up, which is just about perfect. He handled four chances at the keystone bag without a slip and took Edwards' place at first in the final frame.

Prior to the game Nicholson figuratively dropped his lineup into a hat and in the resultant reshuffle, the right and left-handed swatters were pretty thoroughly mixed up.

No one on either side became intimate with the home plate until the third frame when Turk Nash broke the ice with a single run.

Tod Hunselman started it with a single over second. Pollock popped up to Talbot. In the meantime Pollock swiped second and scored when Tom Sayres came through with a timely crash into left field.

The visitors topped the Turk Nash count by a single run in the fourth, chasing over a brace of tallies to take the lead temporarily.

Cal Wagner beat out an infield hit.

City Diamond Loop Completes Plans for Play-Off Contests

Will Use "Lay-off" Week to Clean Slate; Turk Nash Facing Five Engagements.

At a meeting of City Industrial League managers last night at the chamber of commerce, arrangements were completed to finish out the unplayed games of the first half in order to determine the pennant winners.

Wellsville has two games to play, Turk Nash five.

The schedule for next week, which is the "off week" between the first and the second halves, was arranged as follows:

Monday.

Wellsville at K. T. K. (Columbian park).

Loughlin at Turk Nash (Smith Field, Chester).

Tuesday.

Turk Nash at K. T. K.

Thursday.

Turk Nash at Madison Billiards.

Friday.

Turk Nash at K. T. K.

Madison Billiards at Wellsville.

Turk Nash will be rather busy with four games on its card. The Monday game with Loughlin was taken to Smith Field in order to permit the Wellsville-K. T. K. tilt at Columbian park.

KID FRANCIS WINS AT STEUBENVILLE

Kid Francis, local boxer, was an easy victor over Harry Morris, Weirton, in a six-roundner last night at Steubenville.

Francis took four of the six rounds from Morris who claims to have been former featherweight champ of the Atlantic coast fleet.

Francis broke a thumb in the second round, which handicapped his hitting efforts in the closing stages of the scrap.

Fight Results

AT NEW YORK—Tommy Loughran, of Philadelphia, light heavyweight champion, won decision over Armand Emanuel, San Francisco (10).

Tiger Payne, Australian Negro, won from Joe Monte, Boston heavyweight, on foul (6).

Osk Till, Rochester, N. Y. middleweight, drew with Sunny Jim Williams, California Negro (10).

AT PHILADELPHIA—Midget Wolfgang, Pennsylvania flyweight champion, won decision over Battling Griffin (8).

Midland Squad At Chester

Riley Books Steel Nine for Saturday Clash.

OFFICE team of the Midland Inter-departmental baseball league will furnish opposition for Frank Riley's Chester club tomorrow afternoon at Smith Field.

The office tossers are tied for second place in the Midland loop at the present time and are scheduled for a play-off game with their rivals, the winner to meet the first place club in a special engagement on July 4.

Bill Mundy, who recently turned in a fine pitching performance for Turk Nash against Wellsville, Kent McConnell, outfielder, and Greene, infielder, are members of the Midland squad.

Riley will have "Lefty" Crandall and Earl Springer for pitching duties. Crandall, who is working at Midland at the present time, was unable to appear for last Saturday's contest but will be on deck tomorrow. Crandall will pitch for one of the Midland clubs during the second half of the season.

Tony Ranaldi, of the Homer Laughlin club, will be back of the plate. Cox will be stationed at first; Conners at second; "Chap" Finley of Newell at third; and Les McMath of Turk Nash at short.

In the outfield will be Campbell and G. Cebula of Chester and "Sonny" Deshler of Turk Nash.

The contest is scheduled for 3:30.

League Stars On Sherwood Club's Roster

Strong Lineup Planned for New Brighton Game.

East Liverpool, Wellsville and Newell league baseball clubs will contribute a number of their outstanding players to make up the roster of the East Liverpool Cardinals for Sunday's game with the New Brighton Studebakers.

The contest is scheduled for the Sherwood diamond at 3 o'clock.

Don Stoefel of the East End and Midland league clubs, will probably pitch, with Tony Ranaldi of Newell behind the bat. The infield will be made of Hilditch at first, Talbot of Wellsville at second; Watson of Nash Motors at third; Coleman of K. T. K. at short; and in the outfield will be the two Wagners, George and Cal of Wellsville; and Dignan, of Newell.

BRANNEN NAMED UNION; LAYDEN FIRST LEADER

Organization Outgrowth of Knights of Labor.

38 YEARS OLD

Hughes, T. J. Duffy, Menge and Wood Past Chieftains.

When members of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters opened their thirty-eighth annual convention here today they returned to the city where the organization was "born" on December 6, 1890.

The Brotherhood which now boasts a membership of approximately 7,500 workers in the general ware and sanitary ware branches of the industry is the outgrowth of a union known as the Knights of Labor with which East Liverpool potters were affiliated for several years prior to 1890. Many of the potters had ceased their memberships in this Knights of Labor during the lockout of 1882, when the shops were closed for 39 weeks.

Representatives of District No. 160 Knights of Labor, sought to withdraw from the parent organization at the annual convention held in Trenton, N.J., in October, 1890, but the plan was defeated.

Organized in 1890.

Undaunted by this reversal a meeting was held in Toronto, November 1, 1890, when the proposal of forming a separate organization was discussed. A committee was named to make a survey of the field and report at another meeting to be held in East Liverpool on November 15. At the latter session it was decided to withdraw from the Knights of Labor and take steps for the formation of a ceramic industry organization.

Another meeting was held on December 6 when committees were named to draft a constitution and by-laws. Andrew Brannen suggested the name of "The National Brotherhood of Operative Potters," which was adopted.

Plans for the organization meeting to be held here on December 29 were discussed when East Liverpool was apportioned nine delegates and other cities three each. Membership in East Liverpool then was less than 50.

Delegates from Toronto, New Cumberland, W. Va., Kittanning, Pa., East Liverpool and Findlay attended this convention. Harry Layden, East Liverpool, was the organization's first president; A. S. Hughes, New Cumberland, vice president; Charles Dargue, Kittanning, Pa., secretary. The executive council consisted of James Jameson, Toronto; John Hunter, New Cumberland; Samuel Hanlon, East Liverpool; Adolphus Kenney, Findlay, and one other to be selected by the Kittanning local.

First Convention Here. First annual convention was held here July 6, 1891. All officers elected at the December meeting were re-elected for a term of one year. Layden died in November, 1891, shortly after his return from Tiffin where he had organized a new local. The executive board met December 28 and elected John Hunter of New Cumberland to the presidency.

At the second convention, held July 6, 1892, A. S. Hughes of New Cumberland, was elected president at a salary of $800 a year. He held this post until 1903 when T. J. Duffy, East Liverpool, who had been secretary for about four years, was named chieftain.

Potters in the Trenton district joined the Brotherhood in 1897 following a visit there by President Hughes and other leaders. Sanitary pressers were organized and admitted in January, 1900. Thirty-four locals had been formed and were represented at the tenth annual convention held in Wheeling, July 9, 1900. Membership had increased more than 200 per cent during the year and finances had shown a like increase during the same period, report of the national officers indicated.

T. J. Duffy President in 1903.

When T. J. Duffy assumed the helm of the Brotherhood in 1903, the late Edward Menge was elected secretary and Aaron Coleman, treasurer. John T. Wood, who later became president, succeeded Coleman a year later. The offices of secretary and treasurer were combined in 1909 when Menge was elected. At the same time the office of seventh vice president was created and Mr. Wood, who had been treasurer, was named for this place.

Duffy was advised of his appointment to the state industrial commission in June, 1912, and immediately tendered his resignation as president of the brotherhood. While the state appointment was effective August 1, Duffy remained with the organization until after the conference with the manufacturers when a new wage agreement was signed. He served the brotherhood for a month without compensation before leaving for Columbus.

Menge was then elected brotherhood president while Wood was chosen secretary-treasurer. Frank Grattan took Wood's place as seventh vice president that year.

James M. Duffy Now President. Menge served until October, 1921, when he requested the executive board to accept his resignation because of poor health. He died in March, 1922. The executive board elected Wood as his successor, while John D. McGillivray, who had been seventh vice president, was chosen secretary-treasurer.

James M. Duffy, brother of T. J. Duffy, was elected head of the organization last May and assumed charge of the office on August 1. Wood, who retired, was recently named postmaster here to succeed the late Charles Brown.

Recognition of the brotherhood was given by the United States Potters' association in April, 1901, when the manufacturers agreed to meet representatives of the operatives to discuss "matters of mutual interest." After a series of conferences a settlement of the "grievances" was effected on May 1.

Two Strikes—1894 and 1922.

Since the formation of the brotherhood there have been but two strikes, one in 1894 when the plants were idle for about six months and the second in 1922 when there was a 10-week shutdown.

The brotherhood, at the present has approximately 100 local unions in the semi-porcelain, china ware and sanitary branches of the industry. Sanitary ware manufacturers six years ago refused to recognize the brotherhood in the making of future wage agreements, but many locals in this branch of the industry still retain their charters.

In addition to President James Duffy and Secretary John D. McGillivray, present officers of the brotherhood are: First vice president, George H. Cartilage, Trenton; second vice president, George Chadwick, East Liverpool; third vice president, Louis H. Driber, Trenton; fourth vice president, William S. Davidson, Trenton; fifth vice president, Joseph Smith, Philadelphia; sixth vice president, T. M. Woods, Sebring; seventh vice president, Frank Hull, East Liverpool.

Stout men of Europe who are wearing the new "barrel shaped" overcoats are protesting because some slim ones say they present a "beer-barrel" effect.

Organized in 1890.

Undaunted by this reversal a meeting was held in Toronto, November 1, 1890, when the proposal of forming a separate organization was discussed. A committee was named to make a survey of the field and report at another meeting to be held in East Liverpool on November 15. At the latter session it was decided to withdraw from the Knights of Labor and take steps for the formation of a ceramic industry organization.

Another meeting was held on December 6 when committees were named to draft a constitution and by-laws. Andrew Brannen suggested the name of "The National Brotherhood of Operative Potters," which was adopted.

Plans for the organization meeting to be held here on December 29 were discussed when East Liverpool was apportioned nine delegates and other cities three each. Membership in East Liverpool then was less than 50.

Delegates from Toronto, New Cumberland, W. Va., Kittanning, Pa., East Liverpool and Findlay attended this convention. Harry Layden, East Liverpool, was the organization's first president; A. S. Hughes, New Cumberland, vice president; Charles Dargue, Kittanning, Pa., secretary. The executive council consisted of James Jameson, Toronto; John Hunter, New Cumberland; Samuel Hanlon, East Liverpool; Adolphus Kenney, Findlay, and one other to be selected by the Kittanning local.

First Convention Here.

First annual convention was held here July 6, 1891. All officers elected at the December meeting were re-elected for a term of one year. Layden died in November, 1891, shortly after his return from Tiffin where he had organized a new local. The executive board met December 28 and elected John Hunter of New Cumberland to the presidency.

At the second convention, held July 6, 1892, A. S. Hughes of New Cumberland, was elected president at a salary of $800 a year. He held this post until 1903 when T. J. Duffy, East Liverpool, who had been secretary for about four years, was named chieftain.

Potters in the Trenton district joined the Brotherhood in 1897 following a visit there by President Hughes and other leaders. Sanitary pressers were organized and admitted in January, 1900. Thirty-four locals had been formed and were represented at the tenth annual convention held in Wheeling, July 9, 1900. Membership had increased more than 200 per cent during the year and finances had shown a like increase during the same period, report of the national officers indicated.

T. J. Duffy President in 1903.

When T. J. Duffy assumed the helm of the Brotherhood in 1903, the late Edward Menge was elected secretary and Aaron Coleman, treasurer. John T. Wood, who later became president, succeeded Coleman a year later. The offices of secretary and treasurer were combined in 1909 when Menge was elected. At the same time the office of seventh vice president was created and Mr. Wood, who had been treasurer, was named for this place.

Duffy was advised of his appointment to the state industrial commission in June, 1912, and immediately tendered his resignation as president of the brotherhood. While the state appointment was effective August 1, Duffy remained with the organization until after the conference with the manufacturers when a new wage agreement was signed. He served the brotherhood for a month without compensation before leaving for Columbus.

Menge was then elected brotherhood president while Wood was chosen secretary-treasurer. Frank Grattan took Wood's place as seventh vice president that year.

James M. Duffy Now President. Menge served until October, 1921, when he requested the executive board to accept his resignation because of poor health. He died in March, 1922. The executive board elected Wood as his successor, while John D. McGillivray, who had been seventh vice president, was chosen secretary-treasurer.

Lindy's Double

When young William Heskett landed in a plane in Kansas City and peered out of the cockpit, a shout went up from the crowd on the field that Colonel Lindbergh had arrived. The mistake was discovered when the boy clambered out of his ship and stood revealed for what he was—a schoolboy a little frightened at all the excitement.

THRILLS, ROMANCE IN LOWE HIT

If you are interested in pictures stories with a background of the underworld, crooks, master minds and the like—and nearly every one is, then go to the Ceramic theatre where "Dressed to Kill" is on view for a brief engagement and you will enjoy every moment of this Fox Film which can be credited as one of the most entertaining and logical stories that has come to the screen in months.

A capacity audience saw it yesterday and came away thrilled as well entertained.

Through the title of the picture might lead to wrong impressions on

BANISH NERVOUSNESS

Wendell's Pills, Ambition Brand, For Run-Down, Tired Out People.

If you feel tired out, out of sorts, dependent, mentally or physically depressed, get a 60-cent box of Wendell's Pills, Ambition Brand, at J. D. Holloway, C. G. Anderson today and take the first big step toward feeling better right away.

If you work too hard, smoke too much, or are nervous, Wendell's Pills, Ambition Brand, will make you feel better in three days or money back from J. D. Holloway, C. G. Anderson on the first box purchased.

As a treatment for affections of the nervous system, constipation, loss of appetite, sleeplessness, or Nervous Indigestion, get a box of Wendell's Pills, Ambition Brand, today on the money back plan.

The part of some it is quite the best title that could be chosen, for it is the story of a present-day master crook, a brainy individual immaculately dressed, patent leather hair manicured nails, a patron of the opera, connoisseur of art but, after all—a crook and a killer.

This role is played by Edmund Lowe of "What Price Glory" fame and is quite the best starring part this handsome actor has had in some time. Mary Astor plays the role of a girl who joins the band for a purpose, and Ben Bard is the chief assistant of the master mind, with Charles Morton in the male romantic role.

Although "Dressed to Kill" abounds in thrills and action, the high spots include fine direction and acting, romance and humor.

In the final analysis "Dressed to Kill," as a story of the underworld, can truly be said to start in where the others left off, and you should see it.

SILLS SCORES AS GOLD PROSPECTOR

The dreary, dangerous wastes of the frozen Alaskan plains; the hectic excitement of a boom town; the wild, hilarity of gold-mad miners on a spree—against this colorful background has been woven one of the most engrossing pictures of the season.

The picture is "Burning Daylight," a First National production, which opened last night at the American theatre.

Based on Jack London's thrilling novel of the same name, it provides Milton Sills with one of his greatest screen roles, as the daring, courageous prospector who makes and loses several fortunes and finally makes the greatest gold strike of the day.

On the screen has been transplanted all the color, movement, excitement and epic drama of those stirring times and the result is a picture fraught with thrills, tense drama and sweeping pictorial effects.

Milton Sills has never had a role which fitted him more perfectly than the reckless, irresponsible, dangerous adventurer of the northland, ready for the wildest chance, the greatest gamble or the most dangerous venture which presents itself.

Opposite the virile star is charming Doris Kenyon, who provides an exquisite contrast to the rugged Sills.

Drink Hot Water To End Indigestion

INSTANT RELIEF

Thousands of unfortunate people suffer almost daily from stomach acidity, gas, sourness and indigestion after eating. If they would start the agreeable practice of taking a glass of hot water containing a teaspoonful or four tablets of pure Bisulcated Magnesia, they would soon find their stomach so strengthened and improved that they could eat the richest and most satisfying meals without the least symptom of indigestion.

Nearly all digestive troubles are caused by an excess of acid and an insufficient blood supply in the stomach. Food ferments and sours before digestion can take place. A glass of hot water draws the blood to the stomach and Bisulcated Magnesia neutralizes the stomach acids and keeps the stomach strong, sweet and healthy and promotes normal painless digestion. Bisulcated Magnesia is not a laxative, is harmless, easy and pleasant to take, and can be obtained from any well stocked druggist in either powder or tablet form. Try this today and enjoy your meals in peace.

PLAN TO SURFACE
LINCOLN WAY

LISBON, O., June 29.—A new surface will be placed on the Lincoln highway at Brown's bridge in Madison township, it was announced today by Superintendent Neff of the state highway department. Materials have been delivered, and the work is expected to begin within a week.

Pouring of concrete on the Lisbon-Salineville road and the East Liverpool-Youngstown road in Elkrun township has been resumed. With favorable weather continuing for a few days the new road will extend into Madison township, south of Rogers. It has been intimated that the Lincoln Highway association will ask the state highway department to resurface the brick section of this road in Madison township, which is said to be the roughest highway in Columbiana county.

Suggestion has been made that this section be widened four feet by the construction of a concrete curb on the east and west side of the road, and then use the present road as a foundation for a new concrete top that would extend Madison stop on the Y. & O. railroad to Apples corner, where a connection would be made with new concrete road extending south through Cannons Mill and thence to East Liverpool.

COURT DISMISSES THREE APPEALS

LISBON, O., June 29.—Three actions in appeal pending in common pleas court against the state industrial commission have been dismissed from the record.

The appeal of Louis Andro, filed Oct. 22, has been dismissed on motion of the plaintiff without prejudice.

A motion for judgment on the pleadings has been sustained in the appeal of Minnie Kearns, and the case has been dismissed at the cost of the plaintiff.

On demurrer the appeal of Paul Wirth has also been dismissed for the reason the court is without jurisdiction. This appeal was filed June 19, 1925.

In the case of Minnie Kearns, a judgment for $6,500 was sought, but little progress was made in prosecution of the appeal since it was filed Aug. 12, 1924.

Settlement in Civil Action.
LISBON, O., June 29.—A settlement at the cost of the defendant has been effected in the case of Harshaw, Fuller and Goodwin company, against the East Liverpool Potteries company. The plaintiff sought judgment for $49.53 for goods sold and delivered.

Regarding him as an immortal and invulnerable spirit, Burmans refuse to believe that San Hpe, the notorious Burmese bandit, is dead, although he was recently executed after appealing to several courts from a sentence of death imposed several months ago.

The Constant Flame

Narrative of Love and Struggle Against Temptations
By WINIFRED VAN DUZER

Their voices droned on; Emily felt very weary. Now and then the young District Attorney spoke to the coroner; she guessed he was suggesting questions to be asked. Why? Many things they said seemed unimportant to her. What had they to do with Kitten?

All these solemn persons—Al Randall over there with his shield gleaming, holding his cap so stiffly—what had they to do with Kitten?

Something of gone through—oh, run away and forget it. A nightmare thing. Presently she would wake up and find everything vanished. Go back to the shop, work on the movie magnate's house. Get away before Kent saw her...

She stirred a little, gathering up her bag. Then she heard old Gade rasp, "Kathryn Day!". The walls whirled.

Kitten was up there; she was on the witness stand. They were asking her things, watching her. Her lips made funny little movements and they were blue.

"You knew Nicholas Wickert?"

"Yes."

"You met him night before last? Visited the Inn with him?"

"Yes."

"You drank with him there?"

"Y—yes—"

Emily felt herself rising, felt the floor rock under her feet. She saw her hand go out, heard herself cry. "No! She doesn't know what she's saying—not the truth—oh, can't you see? You've no right—no right!"

She was conscious suddenly of Kent's eyes, of the profound shock in his face. In a growing dimness she heard Gade say "sister"; then he spoke to her quietly.

"Sit down, Miss Emily. This is all regular. A few minutes now—"

She sank back, cowering before the hurt they were to give. But they asked no more direct questions; only bade Kitten give her own story of the night.

She told about the woman who had come in from the veranda. She had left the woman there drinking with Knicky and had gone home. It was dark and she was afraid but she had gone. She didn't know what time it was.

No, she didn't know the woman. She'd never seen her before. But she heard her say she was out driving alone.

Emily saw the coroner shake his head. He didn't believe the story. But he let Kitten go.

Then he squinted over his glasses. "Miss Emily, you say your sister wasn't telling the truth? If you'll take the chair, please."

Kent was on his feet, hands pressed hard against the table. "That's illegal, Gade. You can't call Miss Day!"

The old man cocked a shaggy brow at him but made no protest. Emily took Kitten home.

In the Star that evening she read that Mr. Nicholas Wickert had been shot and killed by a person or persons unknown, according to the finding of Coroner Jeremiah Gade.

The District Attorney, the story continued, now was working on the mystery of the crime.

CHAPTER 46.

Mrs. Halden came down next morning to find Emily waiting with her hat on.

"I wanted to talk with you, Frances. You see maybe you'll not care about having me here now, wouldn't bring you disgrace."

Frances moved over, in her solid way, and took the little felt hat from the fair head. Then she sat down, her stained fingers around one small, cold hand.

"You have done something you're ashamed of, Emily?"

"Oh no! It's only—"

"Then, my dear, no disgrace can touch others through you. I'll listen if you have something to tell me but it isn't necessary."

Emily cried then. Rather a good thing for her, the tears that fell, washing away some of the fear, quieting the turmoil a little. Frances lighted a cigarette and smoked thoughtfully; when the girl wiped her eyes and put her handkerchief away she said, "I expect you'll feel better now. Nothing like a good cry for clearing the air."

She showed no curiosity; seemed, indeed, quite careless of confidence. Even in her trouble Emily marveled at this.

Later she was to know that indifference for a live and let live attitude developing however slowly in womankind largely through those who, like Frances, have worked into interests and aims high above old-fashioned pettiness.

Nevertheless she told about Kitten's connection with the Wickert affair. She told about the officers coming to the house and how Kitten had taken up her sister's defense. She even told, wondering, how Kent had prevented old Gade making her a witness at the inquest.

"Humph! Why don't you go and see Roositer?"

"But he's against us, Frances. Marty said—"

"Marty! Think you could drive my car? Of course you can. Take it and run over to Novel City to the courthouse. And remember the law is never against an innocent person."

"What can I tell him? I don't see—"

"He'll do the talking, I dare say."

So Emily drove the seven miles to Novel City and parked under the great trees which border the courthouse lawn. She went slowly, fearfully, up the walk to the old brick building and through crumbling hallways to the door marked "District Attorney."

She didn't know what to do. And while she stood there in mounting agitation Kent came striding briskly through the corridor.

He didn't see her at first. Then she moved and the light from a high window fell upon her face. He stopped, and the blue eyes seemed to go through and through her; she had a dismal feeling that she would cry.

"It's little Emily!" His hand was out and he was smiling. "You came to see me?"

"Yes. I thought—well—"

He led the way to his private office and she crept along. There was a big, leather chair by a desk and he turned it a bit so the sun would be at her back. But when he saw her brimming eyes he turned abruptly, moving some papers on the desk.

A tremor kept running over her shoulders, up one arm and down the other; she brought her hands together to steady herself. She caught typewritten lines on one of the papers: "The People against John Blair".

That's the way it would read, she thought: "The People against Kathryn Day." All the people of the state of New York against Kitten. Everybody, the high and the lowly, the River Road and The Hill, all with cold faces and accusing fingers pointing at a little scared kid.

The image seared into her brain. "Oh, you'd do this?" she cried. "Put all the people against my little sister? You represent them—stand for the people? You'd make them call her guilty because you'd say she is guilty?"

"Emily—" His voice was taut. He went to the next room, bringing back a glass of water. Her hands shook so that the water spilled and he held it for her to drink.

"You don't understand," he went on, gently. "The law claims no one guilty. She is innocent until proved otherwise. Don't you see?"

Leaning toward her there, so earnest, so filled with distress; hair tumbled a bit as it used to be when he came in from football practice. A pained memory of the old days caught her: Kent bending across the aisle to drop a note on her desk; Kent laughing down at her under the elm.

Hard to feel any doubt of him; incredible that she should wonder if he could be like those others she had heard of, prosecutors who tried to prove innocent persons guilty of crimes.

"I have to handle this case, Emily. I'd save you if I could."

She believed that. Nothing but truth in his face, in the blue eyes looking at her so kindly, with such pity.

"If you'd work with me, Emily?"

"What can I do?"

"Your sister told about a woman coming to the Inn? I heard only what she said before the coroner. It was the first—you see, I didn't know she was friendly with Wickert."

Find Mummified Body of Murdered Woman in Peat Bog

DUBLIN.—Hidden for fifty years, the mummified body of a murdered woman has been found in a peat bog at Mullaghmorey, Delvin, County Westmeath.

The body, which was without clothes, was well preserved, and the woman's long plait of auburn or flaxen hair were tied in a knot at the back of the head.

The coroner returned a verdict of murder, saying that the woman had met death by a blow from a blunt instrument over fifty years ago. The woman was about 25 years old.

A resident of the village who is more than 90 years old said that he could not remember any young woman having disappeared during his lifetime, and the murder is a complete mystery.

Twin Ignition HIGH COMPRESSION MOTOR

12 Spark Plugs [Airplane Type] instead of 6

The new "Twin Ignition" motor, in the new Advanced and Special Nash "400" models, is a truly amazing development in power.

It is a high-compression motor, with two ignition coils, instead of one, two spark plugs per cylinder, instead of one, 360 sparks per second at top speed, instead of 180, to thoroughly and economically burn the highly-compressed gases.

It sets a precedent in motor-performance among all motor cars.

Nash "400" Advanced Six models are now capable of 75 to 80 miles per hour with no effort at all.

Nash "400" Special Six models do 70 to 75 with consummate ease.

Another major advantage of the "Twin Ignition" motor is economy — more power, more speed, less gasoline.

Drive a new Nash "400" and you'll see what Twin-Ignition and high compression have done to give the world a new and finer motor car.

Foreign Shipowners Accuse United States Of Aiding Deserters

LONDON, June 23.—British and Continental shipowners are accusing United States of aiding the ship deserter. They say they intend to make a protest through diplomatic channels against the new American shipping law.

It is also stated that the United States, because of increasing difficulty of getting sailors to man American ships, is making efforts through the new law to persuade foreign seamen to transfer to the Stars and Stripes.

Besides, as they say, putting premium on desertion, British shipowners avow that a British seaman, under the terms of the new law, when transferring to another ship may not only draw all his back pay, but may claim this his advance pay should be paid all over again.
